Health + Safety Consultancy Services

calfordseaden has an excellent track record of providing quality Health, Safety, and CDM services for both the construction sector and corporate clients.

Regulatory changes mean that employers and clients are now required to be more accountable for their health and safety performance. They are required to set the standard for health and safety and building safety on their projects, within their workplaces and completed buildings.

calfordseaden firmly believes that Health and Safety services should be delivered within the broader spirit of CDM regulation and legislation, promoting industry 'best practice', collaborative working, and sensible health and safety risk management.

We are committed to changing the perception of health and safety and CDM for the better. We do our best to ensure that the tired clipboard based, box ticking approach, which adds little value to clients or to the work that we produce, remains a thing of the past.

With that in mind, our clients can be assured that our team of skilled H&S professionals will work to understand their business or project needs, and will have their best interests at the very core of our delivery.
